

IGN Article On Transformers Visual Effects

Contributed by ChessPieceFace
Monday, 08 October 2007

IGN has posted an interview with astf Visual Effects Supervisor Scott Farrar. Some of Farrar's quotes are nearly identical to those mentioned in the recent Sci-Fi Wire article, so either they used the same source or Farrar's got a set of talking points so tight it would make Bill O'Reilly jealous.

Aside from the repeated promises that they have the technology to rebuild a better, stronger, faster sequel, Farrar drops some tidbits about how the robots were "cheated" to make their designs more visually interesting, and how a key point of the movie's finale was changed after test screenings.

Read the full interview at IGN.com.