In 2003, the Allspark.com creative community set out on one of its most ambitious projects. Encompassing over thirty of our most talented artists and writers, and taking nearly six months to complete, Battle Protocol was launched at the Official Transformers Collectors' Convention 2003 in Rosemont, Illinois. The project, taking its cues from Dreamwave's "More Than Meets The Eye" series, provided richly populated biographies and phenomenal art for every character from the Robots in Disguise series, including characters who never appeared on the TV show! Several dozen CD-ROM copies of the project were distributed, but the project never had a home on the Allspark's servers-- until now!

The following is the first of several installments of the newly re-designed Battle Protocol: O-Parts Edition, a commemorative re-release of what we believe to be one of Allspark.com's crowning glories.
